

Invitation Leading politicians in the aggressor country invite you to visit their parliament. Do you accept?  If not, nothing happens. If yes, flip a coin: Heads: your delivered EP's position +1 credit. Tails: this was a propaganda trap -1 credit	Golf A businessman is inviting you to play golf with him and offers to pay for a beginner's course. Do you accept?  If not, nothing happens. If yes, flip a coin: Heads: a lot of new useful +1 credit. Tails: a paparazzi captured your swing -1 credit	Sauna A member of a competitive political group is inviting you to a sauna. Do you accept?  If not, nothing happens. If yes, flip a coin: Heads: one hand washes the other +1 credit. Tails: now you need to air your dirty laundry -1 credit
People for Peace Give it to some other player. Peace activists want to know why you promote war. How do you respond?  Other players will vote on how convincing the answer is: Convincing: +1 credit. Not convincing: -1 credit	How did it Go? Give it to some other player. Your party leader at home asks how you voted on the previous amendment and why. How do you respond?  Other players will vote on how convincing the answer is: Convincing: +1 credit. Not convincing: -1 credit	Grandma Calls Give it to some other player. Your grandmother wants to know what you do in the EP. How do you respond?  Other players will vote on how convincing the answer is: Convincing: +1 credit. Not convincing: -1 credit
Interview Give it to some other player. What are your main priorities as an MEP?  +1 credit If the answer is at least one full sentence.	Interview Give it to some other player. How do you balance the interests of your home country with broader EU priorities?  +1 credit If the answer is at least one full sentence.	Interview Give it to some other player. What legislation do you currently work on, and how will it impact EU citizens?  +1 credit If the answer is at least one full sentence.

EVENT

EVENT

EVENT

EVENT

EVENT

EVENT

EVENT

EVENT

EVENT